

I am vehemently opposed to allowing greater media concentration via the removal of the ownership cap. The airways belong to all of us--not a handful of media companies. To allow greater concentration would be a grave disservice to the public interest by the FCC--which exists to serve those interests, not the interests of corporations that already control far too much of the communications spectrum.